

M'KANE IS REBUKED.

Justice Cullen Discharges the Fourteen Poll-List Copyists.

Their Commitments Amounted to Perpetual Imprisonment.

Indignation in Brooklyn Over the High Handed Outrage.

Justice Cullen, of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, made short work this morning of the habeas corpus cases of Law Student John P. McNamara and the thirteen copyists who had been committed to Gravestend by Lawyer Gaynor early yesterday morning, and who were arrested and imprisoned by Chief John V. McKane and his henchmen on their arrival.

Everyone was discharged from custody. Justice Cullen remarking that the commitment in each case seemed to be a sentence to perpetual imprisonment and agreeing with Lawyer "Jerry" Werberg, who appeared for the arrested men, that the commitments were not legal, in that they failed to comply with the requirements of the law.

READ CAPITULATES.

Sheriff Takes Possession of the Fortieth Millionaire's Home.

LAW ROCKAWAY, L. L., Nov. 6.—Deputy Sheriff Walkers, of Long Island City; Constable George De Mott and Deputy John Welsh, Joseph Smith and James McCarthys, of Far Rockaway, this morning took possession of the property at this place occupied by Captain H. Read, who was formerly a partner of Edward F. Stokes in the Hoffman House.

Read was at one time considered a millionaire. The property was recently sold under foreclosure and purchased by James Leary. Read refused to vacate because he claimed that the proceedings were irregular, and he brought suit in the Supreme Court to have the sale set aside.

When the officers arrived this morning Read made no resistance and began to pack up his personal property preparatory to leaving the place.

BOK REPUDIATES BODY.

Talmage's Brother-in-Law Will Not Vote for Him.

William J. Bok, a brother-in-law of Chief McKane, who is a son of the late Senator George W. Rorick, who was present in the court-room of Justice of the Peace Sutherland, at Coney Island, where Mr. McKane went through the farce of arraigning and committing the prisoners, was also on hand, but he had nothing to do with the trial.

District Attorney Ridgway, who was attempting to make the point that he might be used in some future application that might be made to the Court, but he was quickly shut off. The prisoners were charged only for lack of iterimony in committing them.

The charge against law Student McNamara was that of "drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and was a violation of mild and intelligent appearance, gentlemanly manner and wore glasses. He says he never drank in life.

The other fourteen, who were all from the crowd rapidly scattered, Lester Groat said to an "Evening World" reporter that Mr. Gaynor would continue to fight him to the death, but that he could not be made to fight another, although he had been told that several of them were ex-convicts.

He made a feeble plea for the validity of the commitments at which Justice Cullen presided. When the men were brought up, one after the other, so that the Court could take a look at them, the case against each one was dismissed as soon as it was brought up.

Mr. Gaynor then turned right against Lawyer William J. Gaynor.

He says that two years ago he voted for Mayor Hoody, and would have voted for him to-morrow but for the outrage of the people of St. Louis last night.

He expresses the hope that Mayor Hoody will be defeated by an overwhelming majority.

NOVEL START IN LIFE.

Child Born in the Street on the West Side of Town.

Clara Colum, twenty-seven years old, homeless, while at the corner of Forty-seventh street and Ninth avenue, at 1:15 this morning gave birth to a child.

She had with her another child, seventeen months old. Mother and child were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Another Hackensack Burglary.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 6.—A burglar attempted to enter the residence of William Crow, at 260 Main street, last night, and while breaking the glass door was discovered by one of the neighbors. The burglar got away before assistance could be summoned. The rest of the household articles that have been committed in the town lately:

Testing Telephone Stolen.

Hugo Fager, a teleman in the employ of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, asked the Brooklyn police this morning to look for a testing telephone which was stolen from the office of Palmer, Smith & Co., on Franklin street, and represented that he was regaining the wires at the top of an elevated railroad pile.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.

The fourteen men who got off the train at Gravesend Saturday night to secure copies of the registry lists in McKane's district, they were acting under the instructions of Law Student John V. McKane, who had come to serve an order from Justice Cullen to show cause why mandamus should not be granted compelling them to show the polling lists.